In the News

NOAA Chesapeake Bay Office Releases Report to Congress (NOAA Fisheries)

The NOAA Chesapeake Bay Office's Biennial Report to Congress was recently sent to Capitol Hill and is available to the public. The report describes how the NOAA Chesapeake Bay Office, a division within the Office of Habitat Conservation at NOAA Fisheries, leads efforts in habitat restoration, fisheries research, Bay watershed education, and oceanographic observations that lead to real, lasting differences for Chesapeake Bay communities, businesses, and the environment.

A healthy Chesapeake Bay benefits fish, crabs, oysters, waterfowl...and people!

Chesapeake Bay recovery took a hit amid heavy rain in 2018, but retains C grade on annual report card (The Baltimore Sun)

The Chesapeake Bay's recovery took a step back in 2018, but the estuary retained its "C" grade on an annual report card from the University of Maryland Center for Environmental Science.

With nearly twice as much rainfall as normal across the state last year, the bay saw increases in nitrogen and phosphorus levels and declines in abundance of underwater grasses and many types of aquatic life. The surges in precipitation throughout the year washed large amount of pollution and nutrients into the bay from across its 64,000-mile watershed, fouling waters and disrupting its ecology.

Well Water Testing
(Virginia Cooperative Extension-Henrico)

What's in YOUR water? Did you know that private water supplies like wells and springs are unregulated? It is the responsibility of the homeowner to regularly test water quality, maintain the water system, and address any problems. Affordable, confidential water testing and education will be offered through the Virginia Cooperative Extension offices in Henrico County. Participation is voluntary and confidential.

Water samples collected by participating homeowners will be analyzed for 14 parameters, including bacteria, metals, nitrate and hardness at a cost of $60. Results and water system care and maintenance information will be shared at an information meeting. All information is kept strictly confidential and results are reported only to the homeowner. See program flyer

(<https://blogs.ext.vt.edu/henricohort/files/2019/03/2019WellWaterTestingClinic.pdf>) for dates and locations and registration information!

For more information about the Virginia Household Water Quality Program, as well as many resources relevant to private water systems, please visit www.wellwater.bse.vt.edu.
